EMINENT BISHOP'S MESSAGE ON CULTURE AND EDUCATION

Departing Church Dignitary Interviewed by McGill Daily

PARTING UTTERANCE OF DR. BOYD CARPENTER

The Right Rev. Bishop Boyd-Carpenter, for 27 years Bishop of the great diocese of Ripon, England left Montreal yesterday for a few days sight-seeing in Quebec. His Lordship expects to take an extended trip out west before returning to England. The bishop came here at the express invitation of H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, in connection with the inaugural proceedings at the opening of the first joint session of the four co-operating Theological Colleges affiliated with McGill. All those who have had the pleasure of listening to His Lordship's addresses during the past week, judging from remarks that have been made, will have thought it no exaggeration when he was said to be the finest orator in Christendom. He seems to possess all those qualities which go to make up the ideal public speaker and win the affections of all. Upon the platform he at once appeals to an audience as excellent in the qualities of a theologian, a philosopher, a logician, and an elocutionist. He never uses a note, and yet the arrangement of his matter and the depth of the thoughts he expresses, leave nothing that could be desired.

In spite of his three score years and ten, he seems to have lost little of his vitality and probably has a clearer intellect and takes a deeper interest in life than men a great deal younger. Perhaps one thing that has won for him the affection of Montreal people more than even his eloquence, is his magnetic personality. In the course of an interview with a member of the McGill Daily staff, our representative had no sooner shaken hands with His Lordship, than he felt he had known him for years, instead of for the first time.

His kindly consideration can be best illustrated by the fact that although every minute of his time in Montreal seemed occupied, he showed far more concern at having kept our representative waiting a few minutes than at any trouble a reporter's interview incurs.

This eminent bishop who has always taken a deep interest in University work and higher education does not leave Montreal without a message to the students of McGill drawing an interesting contrast between Culture and Education and urging upon all students the necessity of cultivating both. His Lordship's message is as follows:—

"An interesting novel was recently written which set forth the great difference between Culture and Education. A girl who had been brought up amid the influences of modern educational methods was married by a man who had the culture which is so happily and unconsciously won in University life. Soon the great chasm which separates Education from Culture began to appear: the girl regarded knowledge as an end: she was omnivorous of facts; he possessed a passion to add to her store of carefully arranged dates and incidents; she had no use for matters which could not be labelled classified and catalogued in the treasure-house of her memory. Armed with the proud possession of her growing information, she was first surprised at her husband's indifference to topics which interested her; then she began to think of him as a man of ignorance, and the little rift showed itself in their lives. But before the story closed, the wife learned that her husband possessed a grasp upon life and its beauties and teachings which was stronger and truer than hers: she had Education and her memory was a storehouse of facts; he possessed Culture and his spirit could rejoice in everything that he saw as they travelled through the world.

If University life is meant to help Education, it is also meant to diffuse Culture. If we pass through it only intent upon the exact curriculum, which must be passed in order to write two letters after our name, we may miss perhaps that other benefit which the atmosphere of varied culture can bestow. The loss is great and real. I read once in an essay that a mistake of judgement was less than a fault of taste.—

There is truth in this: we can repair an error of judgement, but a fault in taste needs a reformation of soul. Taste expresses what we are: judgement what we think and education may help our minds by storing them with facts and by teaching us how to use our reasoning faculties; but only continued association with all that is noble and beautiful, honourable and elevating, will create in us the spirit of culture.

Education, I admit ought in the largest sense to include culture, but too often it is taken only to include the power to pass certain examinations. Far more important is the winning of a culture which spreads through thought, and feeling, and affection: It is a possession which belongs to our beings: it opens to us new avenues of pleasure, and enlarging thoughts.

No one really gains a true education who does not carry away from his University, besides a degree, a Cultured Spirit. Let therefore every student cultivate wide sympathies as well as studious habits."

SWIMMING CLUB SUCCESSFUL IN SECURING Y.M.C.A. TANK

McGill Aquatics Can Now be Conducted Within Three Blocks of Campus

NEW LOCATION REMOVES FORMER DIFFICULTY

By special privilege extended to McGill the executive of the Y.M.C.A. has consented to allow members of the Swimming Club to make use of its most modern and up-to-date tank during the coming season. In the past years the club had used the Laurentian Baths and although the management did everything in its power to please the students yet the fact of it being so distant from college has kept many from joining the Club. This year the Swimming Club looks forward to a most successful season as the Y.M.C.A. tank is not only one of the largest and most modernly equipped but the fact of it being so close to the college will no doubt attract many students.

The Club will arrange for a tour during the Christmas holidays to several American Universities and those making the team can look forward to a most enjoyable trip. A Polo and Swimming team will also be sent to Toronto to defend the Intercollegiate Title which McGill won last year. It is hoped to get lots of new material to fill the vacancies left open by last year's graduates as the Club stands in special need of plain and fancy divers.

With these inducements all men who can swim or those who wish to learn ought to join the Club and try for a place in the Polo and Swimming teams. Tickets for membership can be had from the janitors of the different buildings.

The first polo match against the C.P.R. will be played to-night at the Y.M.C.A. tank on Drummond street at 8.00 p.m. sharp. This being McGill's home game a large crowd is expected to cheer for the team.

THE UNIVERSITY BAND

The University Band is to be organized shortly. This is an entirely new departure along somewhat radical lines and if it is properly conducted and supported there is no evident reason why musical organization of this nature should not prove a success.

A McGill rosters Club led by a University Band would be a very big feature of a football game. Then too they might dispense sweet music at the hockey games or on Vaudeville Night. The leading act of one such entertainment in the past was a band organized for the occasion by a number of enthusiastic undergraduates.

It was doubtless the success of this effort which prompted those at the back of the present movement to take up the matter of a University Band. In a College as large as McGill this new undergraduate activity should easily gain an enthusiastic membership for it has much to recommend it and if the augury of the past has any significance it should prove a complete success. We heartily urge all those who have musical talent of the requisite nature to turn out and help along the good work and to the students who are undertaking the work of organization the Daily extends its best wishes for their success.

ONLY VERY LIGHT PRACTICE WAS INDULGED IN YESTERDAY

Team are Still Stiff and Sore After Saturday's Game

HARD WORKOUT TO BE HELD THIS AFTERNOON

The team is back from Toronto and this afternoon Coach Shaughnessy had the men out for a light work out. The men are very stiff and sore after the gruelling contest in Toronto so no tackling was indulged in. Tooley Watrous and Matheson were out from 3 till 5:30. Coach Shaughnessy keeping them on the go till their tongues were hanging. Lewis is still very sore and Jimmy Lee is pretty well used up as the result of a bump from Pete Campbell's knee. Jimmy played a great game before he was hurt and seemed to be able to hold the team together. In the second half the signals went wrong and that coupled with lack of condition cost McGill the game.

The full senior squad will be out tomorrow and get down to serious work again. Jimmy Lee is confident of a win from Varsity down here and says the team will be in the pink of condition for that game.

Coach Shaughnessy considered the game no disgrace, the hot weather causing the McGill men to wilt in the second quarter. He said that every man did his best and he had no kicking coming but they would have to work hard and get into condition. He expects great things of Billington when he gets in shape.

There will be a practice every day this week in preparation for the Queen's game next Saturday afternoon as Shaughnessy expects that the Presbyterians will put up the game of their lives. Queen's have suddenly become a big factor in the Intercollegiate race and there should be a bumper crowd out on Saturday.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Mr. Sad went up to Toronto and took in the game. His countenance since his return does justice to his name.

Billington, in spite of his long trip put up a sterling exhibition of ball. His gymnasium work on the Lusitania proved an excellent idea.

The McGill team appear to have suffered far more from the heat than Toronto. Considering the weather conditions under which they have been practicing in Montreal this is scarcely a cause for surprise.

Big Elliot of Queens maintained his reputation as a first-class heavy-weight boxer in Ottawa on Saturday. His sturdy jabs and uppercuts worked havoc among his assailants, even the supposedly redoubtable Quilty retired somewhat disconcerted from the encounter.

Disgraceful scenes on Saturday's football field were not solely confined to the intercollegiate. In Hamilton "Billy" MacMaster was nearly killed by the mob on account of a disputed decision.

Cornellier's fame received a severe jolt in Ottawa when a new star arose above the horizon. Hazlett out-kicked the garnet and gray half on his own field. It should be a contest of some distinct class when Billy and Hazlett meet this week.

If anybody can dispute the pot-pourri of prose poetry which by some mysterious trick of the printers' art appeared under this heading yesterday morning let him apply to the Daily and we will give him work suitable to his talents.

Duncan S. Robinson, the famous Canadian football authority who last year was sporting editor of the Daily has returned to Montreal. Unfortunately Mr. Robinson's stay will not be a long one as business engagements call him elsewhere.

This week's practices will be watched with interest by all the rooters. Shaughnessy has now had a chance to see his men at work in a hard game and no doubt he will inaugurate some changes in the line-up.

The Varsity Rooters' Club were very much in evidence during the game; their new whistling ball proved a great success. By contrast the enthusiasm so far displayed down here suffers badly.

Tommy Church was on hand at the funeral ceremonies as usual. Tommy is a keen follower of sport and can upon occasion make a stirring speech. Witness his effort at the smoker following the McGill-Toronto game down here last fall.

Feeling appears to be running high in the Interprovincial league.

INTERESTING SPEECH AT Y.M.C.A. SUPPER

Reverend Mark John Levy
Speaks on Eternal Hell

Close to one hundred students attended last night's supper at Strathcona Hall. The purpose of the gathering was to inaugurate the Bible Study Courses offered by the McGill Y.M.C.A. this winter.

The chairman for the evening was W. M. Birks, a governor of the University and a member of the Y.M.C.A. Advisory committee. With him at the head of the table were: Dean Adams, Dean Hill, Principal Scrimgeour, Prof. Turner, Prof. Armstrong, Prof. Caldwell and Dr. Johnson of American Presbyterian church. The chairman read a letter from Principal Peterson expressing regret at his inability to be present.

Following the opening remarks of the chairman, the speaker of the evening, the Rev. Mark John Levy, was introduced. The Rev. Mr. Levy, who is a Christianized Jew, spoke on the Significance of Hebrew words. He showed how a knowledge of the actual Hebrew helped immensely in an accurate interpretation of the Bible. He said that the orthodox Jew demanded even an accurate pronunciation of all the words read in a synagogue.

The speaker then went on to give his personal views on the Trinity, Eternal Hell, etc. "Eternal Hell," he said, "was a craving to see God, and being left in utter (spiritual) darkness. The great sin of the world was crookedness."

The second speaker was Mr. Ken. Dawie. He made an appeal for Bible study on two counts, that of the culture to be obtained, and secondly for its intrinsic worth.

Other speakers were Mr. W. H. Henderson, B.A., Dr. Johnson, and C. K. Calhoun, of the Y.M.C.A.'s International Committee. These men outlined the courses which they intended to lead.

Exact details of the classes and hours will be published at a later time when they are definitely set. In the meantime any men who are interested in this should call and see either of the Secretaries.

Night practice was inaugurated last week at Indiana University. The arc lamp and the ghost ball were brought into requisition to get the team into condition for the game in Chicago.

The Glee Club of the University of Wisconsin will take the longest trip ever taken since the organization of the club some years ago. The trip this year will include Milwaukee, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha and Des Moines and intermediate points. The faculty has granted the club an extension of four days for the trip, which will be taken during the Christmas vacation.

CHINESE STUDENTS TO ELECT OFFICERS

Election of officers, besides many other important matters will come up at the first meeting of the Columbia Chinese Students' Association which will be held in the Cosmopolitan Club house, at No. 554 W. 114th Street, Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Refreshments will be served, and all Chinese students are invited to attend.

The Oahu College of Honolulu, Hawaii, has recently obtained an athletic field. The number of men practicing athletics has greatly increased, and now a high school is following the example by buying a field.

THE LIT WILL LOSE POPULAR PRESIDENT

Mr. Hugessen will retire from Chair of Society

At a meeting of the "Lit." Executive held last week Mr. A. K. Hugessen announced his intention of resigning the presidency of that society. The reason is that of over work. Mr. Hugessen is president of the Union, and a member of the Students Council, and stated that he could not find time to render efficient service as president of the Literary and Debating Society. The news was received with much regret by the Executive and supporters of the Literary for "Hugie" has been its most ardent supporter since he first came to McGill.

Mr. Hugessen will formally announce his resignation at the opening meeting on Friday, October 11, at which meeting nominations will be called for his successor.

Despite the loss of the president the opening may be termed an auspicious one. Several prominent speakers in University and political circles are expected to address the meeting and all who attend should be well repaid. Further details of this meeting will be published in tomorrow's issue.

At the opening meeting further details of the year's programme will be announced. A series of inter-faculty debates may be initiated, and a renewal of the Mock Parliament is being seriously considered.

THINGS THEATRICAL

THE ORPHEUM

A very lively little selection from the "Spring Maid" by the Orpheum orchestra, opened another of the management's sterling performances. Vesta, Wentworth and Teddy followed in a comedy acrobatic novelty. Teddy took the form of a canine acrobat, and was perhaps the cleverest of the trio. Their antics amused the audience considerably, and warmed them well up for "A Leap Year Leap," played by Willard Hutchinson and Rosamund Harrison. Here we had the bashful young men and the forward young lady, the former's unconquerable shyness being the only thing standing in the way of their becoming entangled with the marriage knot. But, here, as is generally the case, though the man failed, the woman's will prevailed, by shrieking hysterically she gained his sympathy and refused to be becalmed until he had uttered those fatal words, which were to bind him to her—well, anyway for a week or two.

"Just to Laugh—That's All" was the name by which the next entertainment was introduced, and, if that was the only purpose with which the players set out, they certainly succeeded. A semi-comic trio was followed by "The Land where the Shamrock grows," rendered by F. Can Brown. A most amusing wrangle between Hank Brown and Viola Harris followed, keeping the audience in roars of laughter. Hank Brown was certainly one of the hits of the evening; his discussion with the orchestra, though rather an old idea, was nevertheless of a most entertaining character.

Mr. Henry Clive next showed what he most appropriately termed "The Riddle of the Century." He handed to the audience one hundred picture post cards of well-known paintings and portraits and made the selected picture appear on a screen, a finished painting, though none had been near his canvas. He challenged any chemist to analyse his canvasses and freely invited close inspection. The "Spirit Paintings" were certainly mysterious and interested an enthusiastic audience.

Following the mysterious was a musical skit by Conrad and Whidden who gave a good selection of "rags" and were several times encored.

The next piece was a most laughable farce entitled "Just Married" and this was followed by White and Perry—some smiling singers with smiling songs.

The Arco Brothers, in some very clever gymnastic acrobat work, brought the entertainment to a close which was well up to the Orpheum usual high standard.

CORRESPONDENCE

Montreal, Oct., 7th, 1913
The Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:—

If I might be permitted the use of your valued columns, I would like to draw attention to the apparent lack of interest, and the utter absence of enthusiasm towards the Rooters Club this year. Already the football season is well under way, and parodies and yells should be prepared if the cheering and singing is to be up to last years standard.

This years Freshman class should be instructed in the Alma Mater songs, and indeed if an opportunity were afforded, they would grasp the opportunity of participating in a good "sing".

Personally I dislike "rah rahism" in all its forms, and at a foot-ball or hockey match infinitely prefer to hear spontaneous hurrahs in applause of good plays and in encouragement of our own team, rather than the school boy type of rooting.

However, this latter method has assumed a definite place in our College life, and if rooting is worth doing at all, it is worth doing well. Let us not be put to shame by our Toronto rivals.

Thanking you in advance for your kind consideration of my communication, I am,

Sincerely yours,

SENIOR

A Rooters' Club has been established at the University of Minnesota, the object being to secure greater efficiency in the cheering.

Sixty-two candidates have reported for the Freshman crew at Princeton, a gain over last year's amount of about one hundred per cent.

HIS MAJESTY'S

George Arliss Returns in Famous Play

Three seasons ago we were honored with the first production on any stage of what may really be called a masterpiece of dramatic literature, namely, Louis N. Parker's "Disraeli." Now we are honored with its return to this city with Mr. Arliss in the stellar role, and with several changes both in the structure of the play and in the personnel of the cast. All these changes are obviously for the better.

In presenting "Disraeli" to us the author has turned aside historic facts—in fact he has taken many liberties in this respect, but his aim is not to tell us a story of the times. His aim is to present us as nearly as possible a correct portrait of the great statesman together with a picture of the time in which he lived and the prejudice he was so instrumental in conquering. When we forget our history for a while we can see how really great a play "Disraeli" is.

Mr. Arliss' support is exceptionally good this season. Violet Heming is as good an actress as she is beautiful. She infuses into her part just the right amount of vivaciousness to make it attractive and to save it from triteness. We are very sorry to think of how Margaret Dale has become mechanical in that part which three years ago enabled her to stand second only to Mr. Arliss. As for the star himself—these columns are not wide enough for the adequate expression of the praises due him. So we had better not say anything and just ask our readers to see the play and judge for themselves. The rest of the cast is quite capable.

We might add parenthetically that McGill was well represented last night on both sides of the footlights.

REGISTRATION RETURNS

The registration returns up-to-date in the freshman class show an increase over those of last year. Of course the lists, so far, are by no means complete and it is probable that the present figures will be largely added to. As will be seen from the figures before it is in the faculty of medicine that there is the largest percentage of increase. In Applied Science the increase is very much smaller but it is nevertheless greater than last year. In Arts the number is about the same.

The figures below, are the registration returns in the first year up-to-date, compared with those of last year:—

	1911	1912
Applied Science ...	179	173
Arts ...	175	176
Medicine ...	107	76
Law ...	30	27
